PROGRAM REPORT – CLINICAL DECISION MAKING

Clinical decision making is a problem-solving process of gathering and analyzing examination information from the previously described functional and impairment categories. Team of Army College of Dental Sciences organized a clinical decision making program on the 31st of January 2022.

In order to become better equipped to perform outstanding clinical decision making and foster excellent physician- patient communication; 32 students participated. All the students were given a case of a 35 year old man suffering from severe bruxism. They were divided into groups of four and asked to prepare a treatment plan. There was active participation by everybody and an in depth understanding behind the various approaches that can be followed in order to provide the patient with a holistic treatment.

81.8 % of the students were Post graduate students and remaining 18.2 % were undergraduate students.

Among the students participating 68.2 % thought that the clinical discussion will prove to be extremely helpful in the course of study.

The key take away from the session was the multidisciplinary approach towards a case thereby providing a holistic and an evidence based treatment plan.

Feedback forms were distributed among the participating students few suggestions given by the students included that the presentation must incorporate more graphics and that such discussions must be done on a regular basis.

RESOURCE PERSON AND COMPANY PROFILE

BluOceana Dental in association with ACDS, Secndrabad proudly announces their collaboration to provide Continuing Dental Education Program for Dental Practitioners

Dear Dental Professionals

We are delighted to invite you for an unique event where world class dental expert will share his practical insights to a fully digital approach in today's clinical challenges.

Abstract: Dentistry has always grown by leaps and bounds by disruptive technologies that create a paradigm shift in the way we diagnose, plan and treat dental problems. Recent times have seen a huge shift towards digital processes in the diagnosis, treatment planning and execution of clinical procedures with advances in imaging, design and manufacture that have been supplanted with modern modelling technologies. These developments have principally fuelled the execution of such processes being routinely used in the fields of dental implants, restorative dentistry, surgery and orthodontics. These have enhanced our capabilities in restorative dentistry while decreasing our downtime and costs thereby improving practice efficiency. This presentation will introduce the concept of Imaging through CBCT and Intra Oral Scanning, Computer Aided Design and Manufacturing with special focus on 3D printing as it is applied today in clinical dentistry.

The last session was the demonstration of endotracheal intubation on mannequins which involved sizing the endotracheal tube, checking the equipments, introduction of Bougie, visualisation of vocal cords, glottis opening, inserting the tube and confirming the tube placement.

The students were asked to demonstrate the same on mannequins.

The students were demonstrated emergency procedures like tracheostomy and cricothyroidotomy on mannequins.

The program ended by the demonstration of fiberoptic intubation.

Learning outcome

- Recognize the signs of potentially difficult intubation and airway management.
- Develop a plan for dealing with a known difficult airway.
- Indications for various airway management devices.
- Develop effective management strategies for challenging airway scenarios.

REPORT OF ADVANCED SKILL STIMULATION LAB WORKSHOP

The Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery organised hands on program, “Advanced Surgical Skill Simulation Course” for Postgraduates, interns and faculties under the guidance of Dr Subramanya Sharma (principal and HOD, ACDS) on 16 April 2022.

The program received an enthusiastic and overwhelming response from 16 participants including faculties, postgraduates and Interns. They were divided into 2 groups.

The first session was the demonstration of forceps extraction on goat head model by Dr G Madhusudhana Rao where he demonstrated the different grasp, the different movements applied for each tooth and different techniques of extraction- transalveolar extraction and the students were asked to perform the same on their model.

The next session was on demonstration of local flaps harvesting on goat model where he showed the incision, method of harvesting rotation flaps, rhomboidal flap, advancement flap and their closure.

Next session was on Submandibular gland dissection where he demonstrated Incision and flap Elevation, marginal Mandibular Nerve Preservation, Gland isolation and removal and facial artery ligation.

Learning outcome:

- Skin incision 2cm below the border of the mandible.
- Preserve the marginal mandibular nerve through direct identification or subcapsular dissection.
- Identify and free the lateral surface of the mylohyoid muscle to permit its retraction.
- Identify the lingual nerve, hypoglossal nerve and Wharton’s duct.
- Divide the Wharton’s duct as anterior as possible.
- Divide the submandibular ganglion.
- Preserve the lingual nerve and hypoglossal nerve.
- Ligate the facial artery twice: Once superiorly and again inferiorly as it crosses the digastric muscle.

Demonstration of different approaches to orbital was done in the next session where he showed lateral brow, upper blepharoplasty, subciliary, subtarsal, transconjunctival. He also demonstrated lateral canthotomy procedure.

Learning outcome:

- The lateral orbit, orbital floor, and medial orbit are useful anatomic divisions that are each exposed best through distinct approaches.
- Lateral brow, upper blepharoplasty, and coronal approaches provide access to the lateral orbit.
- The orbital floor is accessible through sub ciliary, sub tarsal, transconjunctival, or trans antral approaches.
- Lynch, transcaruncular, trans nasal, and coronal approaches are useful for medial orbital exposure.
- When cutting the inferior crus, aim inferoposteriorly toward the lateral rim to avoid injuring the levator muscle, lacrimal gland, and lacrimal artery, which are located superiorly in lateral canthotomy procedure.

The last session was the demonstration of sinus lift procedure on goat head model and harvesting the bone graft using piezo tome by Dr Madhusudhana Rao. This session provided a real time direct visualization of creation of lateral window, detaching sinus mucosa during mucosa elevation and adaptation of graft on the elevated sinus lining.

The participants were directed to perform the same on the goat model and were closely supervised.

The lateral wall of the goat sinus which is relatively thin and was easily trephined, simulated and resembled the surgical environment in the human edentulous posterior maxilla.

Learning outcome:

- The use of Piezo surgery for creating the window has been reported to eliminate the drag created by rotary instrumentation and causes less damage to the blood vessels or the Schneiderian membrane.
- Two methods of osteotomy performed- one abrading away all of the bone in the window area and the other by performing a trap door osteotomy forming a lateral window.
- A minimum of 4-5mm residual bone height is preferred for simultaneous implant placement.
